April 25, 1834

Dear Sirs,

Disposition remarkably mild. Dutiful and affectionate to Parents. Remarkably attentive to cleanliness during a bolder more than usually accustomed with domestic arts. Instructed in the duties of domestic life. Very little intercourse with whites. For some time a member of a travelling company. Was noticed as very amiable. While with Mrs. Cassidy learned to talk English. Here attended school a short time. Also another school short time when a child. Forget all but her letters before going to "Ravenswood."

Mr. Gilbert's description of Battersea.

No. 5.